FUNDS FOR HIV/AIDS RESEARCH

Dr. Ana Puga, medical director for the Comprehensive Family AIDS program at the Children's Diagnostic Treatment Center, was keynote speaker at a fundraiser for the Campbell Foundation. Dr. Puga spoke to a group of 100 supporters at the Warwick condominium building, telling them that the promise of a cure for HIV/AIDS is more of a reality today than ever before.

Guests included Dr. Mathias Lichtenheld, associate professor of microbiology and immunology at the University of Miami School of Medicine, and Rebeca Geffin, research assistant professor at UM Health System and past Campbell Foundation grant recipient.

The event earned about $13,000. In the 19 years since its founding, the Campbell Foundation, which is based in Fort Lauderdale, has given away $9 million in grants to researchers around the world.
